Lead and Influence
Create a ‘can-do’ attitude by involving your team and your colleagues in what you are trying to achieve – empower them, support and encourage them. Take responsibility for your actions and those of your team but if mistakes are made, don’t dwell on them – respond appropriately and learn from them. Be your own role model and always lead by example. Develop a reputation for being firm, fair and approachable. Inspire and motivate your team with your passion and drive for excellence. Don’t be afraid to introduce challenging objectives but do it thoughtfully, and allow time and space for others to respond and ask questions. Take considered risks and don’t avoid decisions in difficult situations.

Respect and Value
Make trust and loyalty a way of life. Be known for being truthful, reliable and consistent. Recognise and value people’s differences and respect individuality. Look for the best in people, let them know that you value them and help them recognise their potential. Treat everyone as you would like to be treated yourself, and go out of your way to encourage good relationships amongst your colleagues and your team.

Listen and Inform
Listen, ask questions and observe. Don’t jump to conclusions. Be aware that your first response may not always be the right one. Accept that listening is as valuable as telling. Encourage others to do the same. Always give feedback at the appropriate time and place and in such a way that people can improve and learn as a result. Make sure that you give people the information they need to understand what you are trying to achieve.

Recognise and Acknowledge
Treat all staff and customers in a courteous, friendly manner. Celebrate and reward success and express appreciation for what people are contributing. Be prepared to praise excellence and equally prepared to challenge underperformance.
